Abstract
The task for my work placement at HEX GmbH was the conception and implementation of an automated staff rostering system. This system should cost-efficiently assign employees to tasks under certain conditions. One main condition is that employees can only be assigned to tasks they are qualified for according to their skills. Also, possible time restrictions, payment regulations, and some more factors have to be taken into account.

Philipp Hungerländer and the Department of Mathematics look forward to seeing you at the talk!
